Thinking Out Loud

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

A dollar spent on food in the summer of 1939, according to a statement recently released by Undersecretary of Treasury Daniel W. Bell, would only buy 84 cents worth today.

Since the war started in Europe, said Bell, the cost of living has risen 10 per cent; he added that it has increased 7 per cent since last February.

"This is a more serious story for all of us," commented Bell, "than at any time since the period of swiftly rising prices in the last World War."

There can be no doubt that bombing living costs are becoming a serious problem for "all of us," as the treasury officer asserted, and no one—least of all the farmer—wants to see a recurrence of the hectic high cost of living era which characterized the first World War.

In seeking to stem the tide of rising prices, however, it is of utmost importance that the whole economic situation should be weighed carefully, not just a segment of it, and that when the brakes are put on they shall apply equally and fairly to all classes. Otherwise, we shall be courting national disaster.

For instance, if a ceiling is to be put on prices, then a ceiling must be put on wages. Ifwe are to have price control, we must have wage control. Otherwise the farmer, and producers generally, will face inevitable ruin and bankruptcy. There can be no escape from this conslusion.

While food prices have undeniably increased, with at least part of the increased return accruing to the farmer's account, the prices of things the farmer must buy have undeniably increased in greater ratio than the things he sells. Not only have the prices of farm machinery and equipment soared tremendously, but two of the biggest items in farm overhead—wages and taxes—have soared even higher, with every prospect that they will go much higher in the future.

There is no disposition on the part of American agriculture to shirk its fair share of the burden which must be placed on the American people to pay for the cost of national defense. Most farmers, having suffered from a long period of low prices for farm commodities, undoubtedly react unfavorably, at least on first consideration, to suggestions that present price rises be checked by law or governmental decree. But if price control measures are essential to national security, the farmer will be good soldier and take such restrictions without grumbling—provided equal controls are aplied to farm costs, including wages.

The greater danger in the situation lies in the possibility that congress and the national administration, letting politics invade the field of economics, will decree that prices can't go beyond a certain point, but will continue to let labor leaders run rampant with demands for higher and higher wages, even though increased labor costs can't possibly be met except by higher prices.

If prices are to be kept down, then the factors which make them go up must also be controlled. Any high school student knows that; any congressman or cabinet officer knows it, too, but government officials all too often prefer what they consider sound politics to sound economics. It must be the responsibility of the American people, during this emergency, to see that all favoritism is eliminated and to make official Washington know that no slacker class will be tolerated, regardless of the political pressure that class may bring to bear.

The workers of America, as a class, are just as patriotic and loyal as the farmers of America, but it has become increasingly apparent, as unwarranted strikes have slowed up and endangered the nationa defense program, that the professional labor politicians of America think of their own selfish interests first and their country when they get around to it. California agriculture—and American agriculture—will be watching Washington to see that that condition is corrected.

Benefit From Christmas Seal Sale Funds Will Be Told

Mrs. Carl Foote is the program chairman. Tea hostesses include Mrs. Warnecke, Mrs. Butz, Miss Ford, Mrs. Lystrup, Mrs. Popovich, Mrs. Berger, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Kensinger.

Following the meeting those attending will be given the opportunity to inspect Mrs. Miles D. Coughlin's noted doll collection.

MACBOYLE GIVES LAND FOR ROAD PATROL OFFICE

Captain Joseph Blake of the California Highway Patrol has revealed Errol MacBoyle, executive vice-president of the Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation, has deeded an acre of land on the Grass Valley-Nevada City Highway for a Nevada County headquarters of the highway patrol.

The site for the proposed patrol headquarters is west of the golf course, near the entrance of the Grass Valley Memorial Hospital, under construction.

At present the patrol office is located in Hills Flat. Captain Blake said he has been assured consideration will be given by the state to the appropriation of funds for the construction of the patrol headquarters on the gift land.

GUIDON WILL BE PRESENTED TO C FLIGHT

The Grass Valley Business and Professional Women's Club has issued an invitation to Nevada Cityans to attend the ceremonies tonight in the Veterans Memorial Building in Grass Valley when the club will present a guidon to the C Flight of the California State Guard.

A street parade, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, will precede the presentation.

The state guard company will present a drill. Dr. Daniel L. Hirsch, reserve army captain, will speak. The presentation of the guidon on behalf of the local women's organization will be made by Thelma Sahl, president.

Following the presentation dancing will be enjoyed.

Grass Valley Woman Serving Jail Sentence

Mrs. Dale Buchanan, 37, of Grass Valley, is serving a 30 day sentence in the county jail here following her plea of guilty before Justice of the Peace Charles Morehouse to a charge of disturbing the peace.

The officers assert Mrs. Buchanan was arrested after a dispute with Mrs. Rose Ellis. The complaint against the defendant was signed by Officer Frank Knuckey of Grass Valley.

The authorities state Mrs. Buchanan is a bride of two weeks.

Christmas Club Members Here Get $14,000

This weekend, Bank of America will put more than 300,000 checks in the mail, timed to reach as many Christmas Club members throughout California on the morning of December 1.

Total disbursement represented by these checks will exceed $18,000.

In this community alone, approximately $14,000 will be paid out to 226 club members, according to figures just released by H. A. Curnow, manager of Bank of America in Nevada City.

"This ready cash," remarked manager Curnow, "painlessly accumulated during the past twelve months, will prove very welcome to the Christmas Club members, providing funds to meet tax bills, defense bond purchases and Christmas shopping requirements."

The banker also pointed out that the statewide total is $2,000,000 higher than last year's record mark, an increase of 12.5 per cent, indicating that more and more citizens are learning to organize their savings, strengthening the economic structure and yielding profit to themselves and their communities.

It was announced that the 1942 Christmas Club is now open, and that enrollments are being accepted daily at the local branch of Bank of America.

Festive Yule Season Planned By Merchants And Residents Of City

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, OTHER LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS MAKING PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS HERE

Christmas is less than one month away.

That fact confronted merchants and residents of the city today and the realization came that no time must be lost in preparing for the day, the most celebrated of the holidays of the year.

Already local organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, have started the formulation of plans for the yule season.

Lloyd Dudley is chairman of a Chamber of Commerce committee named to start the functioning of machinery for the pre-Christmas and actual Christmas celebrations here.

It is the plan of the local chamber of commerce to cooperate with all local organizations in their yule celebrations and to stimulate business among local merchants.

It has been suggested, and the committee will give it consideration, that celebrations be held in the business district each night after December 15th, the time set for the remaining open of the stores each night until Christmas.

Local merchants are urged to decorate their windows appropriately for the coming Christmas season. The Chamber of Commerce will handle the decorating of the streets. The colored lights put up in the business district last year for the Christmas season are still up and all that is necessary will be the placing of tree and evergreen bough in various places.

Mine Workers League Officers Nomination Will Close Tonight

Nominations for new officers of the Mine Workers Protective League bargaining agent for all large operating mining properties in the county except the Lava Cap, will close at tonight's meeting at the Auditorium Hall in Grass Valley.

The election will take place on December 4th.

President Olney Donnelly, who has served as head of the local independent labor organization for the past four years, is not a candidate to succeed himself. Donnelly has been in ill health for the past year.

Advance Ticket Sale Abolished By Schools Here

District Superintendent of Schools H. E. Kjorlie announced today there no longer will be an advance sale of tickets to any function sponsored by local schools.

District Superintendent Kjorlie said he believes the abolishment of the practice will meet with the universal approval of local businessmen, whom he said have probably been always over solicited.

Last year the school board adopted a ruling no school pupils, particularly the elementary school shall sell tickets or memberships for any organization, except in connection with a direct school activity.

In addition to that, Korlie points out, the high school has concluded it will at no time sell tickets for anything. Any function sponsored by the high school will have no advance ticket sale. Admission will be paid at the door.

Kjorlie said there are two reasons for this:

1—It eliminates over emphasis on solicitation of business firms and

2—It makes it easier to comply with federal tax regulations.

The high school ruling means that only twice during the year will an appeal be made to local merchants. The businessmen will be solicited for ads in the annual Quill and for a merchandise donation for door prizes at the annual carnival.

In connection with the new ruling high school students will not be allowed to sell tickets in the business district in the queen contest now in progress at the school.

Mrs. Merle Morrison announces that there will be no meeting of the Nevada City Girl Scout Council until February.

MERLE MORRISON ADDRESSES BUSINESS GROUP REGARDING SELECTIVE SERVICE PRINCIPLES

BY DOROTHY THOMAS

Merle A. Morrison, clerk of the Selective Service Board in Nevada City spoke to the Nevada City Business and Professional Women's Club at their monthly dinner meeting at the National Hotel last evening.

Morrison's subject was "What the Selective Service Is." The object of the Selective Service, Morrison said, is to pick men for the different branches of the service that will build the United States Army to excel any army in the world today. It all began with the president appointing a director of Selective Service. State directors were appointed by the governor of each state. One Selective Service Board was organized in each county, but some larger cities have several. There are now 6,5000 boards throughout the United States.

Two thousand eight hundred and eighty five men registered in Nevada County with the first registration on October 16, 1940, 106 registered on July 1, 1941, There have been several transfers, men released from prisons and from the armed forces that make the total registrants for Nevada County 3008.

There are four main classifications into which the questionaires are put after they are completed and returned. Class Ia ready for induction, Ib remedial defect, Ic-man already in the service, the Ia man becomes Ic after induction, class Id-students. Up to July 1, 1941 students were deferred after their physical examination for 1 semester. Now students are deferred depending on the type of studies.

The farmer is in class 2a and may be deferred from military training for 6 months or longer if his induction would mean a hardship to the community or to the nation. 2b is the defense worker connected directly with national defense projects. Class 3a—man with dependents. Class Aa a man who has completed two years and 6 months, or more of service in any branch of the armed forces.

Class 4b—congressmen, senators and some state officials that are by the laws of the Selective Service deferred from military service. Class 4c —Aliens, 4d, ministers of the gospel, etc. 4e conscientious objectors. All conscientious objectors are required to fill in an eight page affidavit telling why they object to military training. Some conscientious objectors are inducted but are made stretcher bearers and nurses. Other objectors are sent to a Civilian Work camp and are obliged to pay their room and board out of their monthly

LEWIS BACKTRACKS

Suddenly and surprisingly, John L. Lewis, dictatorial boss of the United Mine Workers, has backtracked from his indefensible and unreasonable defiance of the government, and thus brought to a happy conclusion the captive mine strike, which had outraged public opinion more alarmingly perhaps than any other industrial dispute since the start of the defense emergency.

It remains to be seen whether or not Lewis' yielding came in time to stave off the anti-strike legislation and other retaliatory measures for which his strike against national defense so obviously was paving the way. Probably no such action will be taken now until the outbreak of another major defense strike adds new fuel to the already inflamed sentiment of congress and the public.

Most puzzling thing about the sudden end of the strike, of course, is the unexplained flip-flop Lewis took between last Wednesday, when he flatly and defiantly rejected the president's arbitration proposal, and Saturday, when he told the president that his UMW policy committee had unanimously accepted the same proposal.

There would seem to be three possible explanations of this strange behavior on the part of this labor czar who "never let any man stand in his way."

1—Lewis himself may have seen how ominously public opinion was re-acting against him, and resolved to change his tactics from demanding to bargaining.

2—Lewis' henchmen on the UMW policy committee, less stubborn in their refusal to see the handwriting on the wall, may have talked the chief out of his all-or-nothing attitude—or they may even have simply outvoted him, although his control of the union is generally believed to be so great that opposition votes are as rare as they are in the German reichstag.

3—Lewis may have reason to feel that John R. Steelman head of the labor department's conciliation service, is on his side. When the president first proposed arbitration, Lewis loudly yelled that the decision of any umpire that might be selected would reflect the president's "prejudicial views." It was after Steelman had been designated as umpire, however, that Lewis agreed to submit the issue to arbitration.

So far, the president has handled this particular situation in a statesmanlike way by showing rare patience in dealing with the man who was bent on putting him on the spot at all costs.

The fact remains, however, that the administration has not come up with any broad policy for settling labor disputes in defense industres. And until it does so, the weapons of economic and political pressure will continue to be used mercilessly by labor leaders who are guided by their own appraisal of what they can get away with, rather than by patriotism or a spirit of fair play and co-operation.

What is needed, obviously, is some sort of equitable yardstick for settling disputes, so that the opposing parties will know pretty well in advance whether their demands will be regarded as unreasonable when they go before the defense mediation board or a similar agency.

In the first World War, the formula with respect to the closed shop issue was that the status quo was to be preserved for the duration, and that the government would be unsympathetic toward either a union or management that exploited the emergency either to gain the closed shop where it had not existed before or to break the closed shop if it already had been achieved.

There is no reason why this same "status quo" formula should not be applied by the government in the present emergency.

If it is done in the arbitration of the captive mine dispute it, will set a precedent that will discourage such heavy-handed bosses as Lewis from trying to get away with their ruthless attemps to turn the emergency to their own personal gain in the future.

If arbitration in this case becomes nothing more than a polite way to yield to Lewis' every demand, on the other hand, the foundation will be laid for a new outbreak of defense strikes.

The outcome of this arbitration proceedings ,therefore, may well be a clue as to whether the government really has a labor policy or wether it is content to let the outrageous strike situation drift aimlessly while it yields to the political pressure of a strong boss and cracks down on a weaker one.—Sacramento Union.

CALIFORNIA'S GREAT CENTENNIAL NEAR

The centennial of California's historic quinquennial will soon be on the calendar, and the state should plan celebrations as great as possible to commemorate the tremendous hundred years that are drawing to a close.

The great dates over a span of five years are:

1846—Establishment of the California (Bear Flag) Republic at Sonoma June, 1846; conquest of California by the United States, July, 1846.

1848—Discovery of gold by James Marshall at Coloma, January, 1848.

1849—The "Gold Rush," when within a year 50,000 emigrants crossed the plains of came by ship to California.

1850—Admission of California into the Union as a state, September 9, 1850.

The state legislature has already laid plans for the celebration of the Bear Flag Republic. These plans should be perfected, and carried on in unison with plans for the celebration of the great significance of the discovery of gold, which brought the newly acquired region to statehood, without passing through the probationary territorial discipline.

The celebration of this great centenary should be put under way now, and a comprehensive plan evolved.

The Gold Rush alone was one of the great events in the history of the human race, a migration of a people not bent on military conquest, but civilizing a wilderness in quest of gold.

It may be said that never in the history of the world, never in any one region, have come such rapid growth and development as have been California's in the 100 years now ending. Here is something to celebrate.—S. F. Examiner.

NO PRIORITIES TO HAMPER MINERAL OUTPUT

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Director of natural resources Kenneth I. Fulton, recently returned from Washington for conferences on mining priorities, today predicted that curtailed production because of priorities would throw more than 2,000,000 persons out of work in the United States, including many in California.

Citing the automotive industry as an example, he said the increasing changeover to defense production would destroy the jobs of many persons engaged in allied industries.

"Most people have paid very little attention to the impending shortage of such common articles as household utensils and appliances, but federal officials have very definite plans for curtailing such production" Fulton said.

"In the mining industry, however, there will be a general go-ahead on priorities on ventures producing metals for national defense. It is unlikely that new projects will be authorized, such as gold mines, but mineral production will not be hampered in any way, which should be good news to California miners. We have been assured of a preferred rating for replenishing supplies of tools.

ADJUTANT GEN. MAY DRAW TWO SALARIES

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 27.—(UP)—The attorney general's office ruled today that Brig. Gen. J. O. Donovan is not barred from performing the duties of California adjutant general because of his service as drector of selective service for California under the federal government.

In a ruling asked by Controller Harry B. Riley, Attorney General Earl Warren said that there was no state law prohibiting Donovan from drawing salaries both as adjutant general and director of selective service. Warren also said that a search had disclosed no federal law applicable, but that the president might have issued an executive order governing the situation.

The salary of the state adjutant general is $12,000 a year and Donovan is drawing $6,000 annually as director of selective service. Riley said Donovan had not accepted any of the adjutant general pay.

M. S. Mosk, Gov. C. Olson's executive secretary, said Donovan had accepted the two positions with the understanding he would take only the federal salary.

However, Warren advised Riley to continue to draw pay warrants for Donovan as adjutant general and leave it to Donovan's descretion whether or not to accept them. Warren said there was no doubt that Donovan was fully authorized to spend appropriations for the adjutant general's office.

DON'T CUT IN

A frequent cause of traffic accidentis is cutting in front of another car too soon after passing, reports the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club. Such a manouver isn't expected by the other driver and it either means a wreck or driving off the road. No motorist should swerve back into the other lane until he can see some part of the car just passed in the rear view mirror.

PEDESTRIANS WARNED

Pedestrians are warned by the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club against the burying of heads in coat collars and umbrellas during rainy days. Many walkers cover their heads and can't see, except for a few feet and if they can't see, they can't avoid walking into passing vehicles.

And isn't it true that in the months ahead, no matter how low the doilar may fall, it will never fall lower than some people will stoop to get it?

Les: "You look all in today, Tom: what's the trouble?"

Tom: "Well, I didn't get home till after daybreak, and I was just undressing when my wife woke up and said, 'Aren't you getting up awful early?' To save an argument I put on my clothes and came down to work."

San Francisco salesman: "Now up in the northern part of the state it takes about a year to grow a tree that size. How long woud it take you?"

Los Angeles salesman: "Don't know for sure, but it wasn't there yesterday."

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder at the poet folk
Who, through the years from time to time,
Present their fondly cherished thoughts
In filigree of measured rhyme.

I wonder if it is true that, "the best thoughts of a language are in its poetry." Even if it is not, we all know that poetry is more easily remembered than prose and that when a stately stanza or an amusing jingle finds its way into the castle of the mind, it is very apt to find a secure place therein.

There are the poems we learned in childhood. The Psalm of Life, The Builders, Barbara Fritchie and scores of others. Then, in later years, our memories stored away heroic extracts from the works of Homer, Milton, or Shakespeare, which we have not forgotten and probably never shall forget. Whether stately blank verse or jingling rhymes, the thoughts of the poets remain with us and add to the pleasure and charm of our rememberings.

In one of Mark Twain's fantastic yarns, the heroine has the graceful ability to say much with but a single word. For instance, in expressing her reactions to India, she said, it is so marginal." Many poets have possessed this gift—many have not. We think of Homer as being remarkably verbose, but he endows some of his characters with powers of cryptic speech.

For example, three old men were sitting in an open market place dicussing the siege of Troy. They were, of course deploring the discomforts of war, taxes, etc.

They berated the Lady Helen; why should the entire nation be disturbed by this foreign female. "Send her home," they said, "and end this foolish war."

"Hush," cried a bystander, here she comes now." Six eager old eyes stared appraisingly as the lovely Helen passed them by, and then, "let the war go on," cried three quavering old voices. The discussion ended.

I wonder why so many people envy the abilities of others. They do though. Did you ever meet a comedian who wasn't visualizing himself in the role of Hamlet. Did you ever hear of a short story writer who wasn't planning to write the great American novel. That is the way it goes. Producers of sweet and tender lyrics, aspire to compose epics that will rumble through the corridors of time and authors of epics, sagas and immortal sonnets, often forget their dignity and write silly jingles of which they are not in the least ashamed. I, being a rhymster, have for some time now, repressed the desire to add to the mass of ryhtmic literature which has accumulated about that exotic creature, the purple cow. I shall suppress that desire no longer. Here's my contribution.

Oh, I have seen the purple cow,
She came when I was dreaming,
Her purple hide was splotched with mauve,
Her purple eyes were gleaming.
And by her sat a little maid
In purple beauty glowing,
And there into a purple pail,
Rich purple milk was flowing.

1000 CHRISTMAS TREES FOR N. C.

Scarcity of Christmas trees to the primary routes of travel has forced the officials of the Tahoe National Forest to limit free cutting of trees for the coming holiday season.

"The available supply of Chhistmas trees is scarcely enough to serve the people residing within the boundaries of the national forest and those living immediately adjacent thereto," states Guerdon Ellis, forest supervisor. "Accordingly, permits are limited to 1,000 trees this year to local residents, only so that the supply may be continuous in that amount for years to come," he added. Free permits will be issued as usual by the various district rangers of the Tahoe forest and at the supervisor's office at Nevada City, and will be limited strictly to one tree to a family. Permits will be issued for the period of December 1 to 24, inclusive, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. on week days and 9:30 to 12:30 p. m. on Saturdays. No permits can be issued on Sundays at the following places:

Supervisor's office, Nevada City. Forest Hill ranger station, Forest Hill. Big Bend, Truckee, Sierraville, Downieville, Camptonville.

"We regret exceedingly," states Ellis, "that we shall be unable to issue free Christmas tree permits to residents of the Sacramento Valley and the bay area."

NEW U. S. $5 TAX ON AUTOS STARTS FEB. 1, 1942

Motorists will pay the new federal use tax of $5 on every car to the collector of internal revenue in each district, according to advices received by the California State Automobile Association from AAA headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Registered owners will be notified by mail about the first of the coming year, according to present plans, and a payment of $2.09 will become due February 1, next. Payment of $5 for a full year will become due July 1, 1942. Payment of $2.09, or five twelfths of $5 covering the months of February, March, April, May and June, 1942, places the tax on a fiscal year basis.

Evidence of payment of the tax will be in the form of a revenue sticker which must be displayed on each vehicle, under present plans.

The law provides that every motor vehicle registered and used on the public highways, regardless of age or original cost, shall be subject to the tax of $5 per year. The tax will be pro-rated at the rate of one-twelfth per month for motor vehicles registered during the fiscal year. Where registration of a vehicle occurs after the first month of the fiscal year, the tax will be reckoned from the first day of the month wherein use occurs. For example, a new car purchased and registered in December, 1942, will pay five twelfths of $5; a car first registered in February, 1943, will pay five-twelfths of $5. Once the tax has been paid no further tax payments are required for subsequent transfers during any one fiscal year.

Mrs. Mary Doolittle and Mrs. Roy Stanley form the committee in charge of the bazaar. Next Wednesday a special meeting will be held to complete all plans for the bazaar.

At yesterdays meeting besides the business and sewing a social time and refreshments were enjoyed. Mrs. Ralston was hostess of the afternoon.

R. E. Johnson Mining On Yuba Near Washington

The Mining Journal reports R. E. Johnson, cement contractor of Grass Valley, is developing ground on the South Yuba River above Washington, Nevada County, where he has discovered commercial gold values in a large quantity of material sluiced to a flat years ago to form a vegetable garden.

POSITION OF SMALL MINES UNDER PRIORITY SETUP CLARIFIED

Operators of gold lode mines and placers, or mines considered too small to be given priority serial numbers under Preference Rating Order No. P-56, can continue to use the method provided by P-22 to buy supplies and equipment, according to a statement made by a spokesman of the Priorities Division in Washington. This ruling gives operators an A-10 rating and clarifies the priority situation as it relates to the mines. Producing gold lode mines will receive serial numbers as soon as they can be certified and issued.

Under P-56, the order issued to encourage mine production of all sorts serial numbers are not being issued to small mines unless and until those mines employ at least ten men and produce a "fairly good tonnage," a spokesman for OPM's section of Mine Priorities said in an interview.

"We have men who can tell what a fairly good tonnage is for any of these little mines,' he added. "Of course, a mine employing only ten men can't expect to produce much."

P-56 grants a rating of A-1a for emergency breakdown repair, and A-8 for ordinary repair and maintenance. "But small mines can obtain repair and maintenance equipment under P-22.

P-22 is an order issued September 9 granting priority assistance, for repair and maintenance work in a number of essential industries, including mining. As far as mining is concerned this order supposedly was superseded entirely by P-56, issued later. This is stated to be the first public announcement that mine operators still can use P-22, which would give them an A-10 rating, slightly behind the usual mine rating of A-8.

For special orders, or orders desperately needed by a small operator who is producing a worth-while quantity, PD-1, the original priorities form, can be used, the OPM spokesman said. By sending this order direct to Washington, indicating proof of need for certain equipment a satisfactory priority rating can be obtained, he added.

"We have so many priorities requests from the 16,000 mines of the country that we have to give known producers the advantage," it was said. "When the small fellows get big enough to show they're going somewhere, then we consider that they have a mine. There are many alleged mines in the west which are little more than holes in the ground."

If hoisting cables are not actually broken, the only condition for an A-1-a rating for repairs, the OPM spokesman continued, is positive certification by a state safety inspector of mines that he will have to close the mine down because of danger unless the cable is repaired or a new cable obtained. Almost every state has such inspectors, he added.

OPM's section of mine priorities is granting serial numbers as rapidly as possible, according to officials, and in some instances merely on statement of the name and location of the mine. Some applications, however, are carefully checked.

Although lode gold mines have not yet received serial numbers, it is stated by Dennis K. Pickens, assistant administrator of mine priorities that "there is no intentional exclusion of gold mines from receiving serial numbers. Any mine of this nature which was sufficiently large or of a generally worthy nature is eligible." Gold placers were specifically excluded from P-56, but Wilbul Nelson, administrator of mine priorities, stated that "priority assistance would be available to the placer industries by the use of Preference Rating Order No. 22.

MORE ABOUT MORRISON

salary of $21.00 month. Class 4f-physically and mentally unfit.

Before they are classified in any of these classifications, the men are given a thorough physical examination by local physicians who donate their services to the government. The health standard is very high and many men have been rejected for slight defects. There is some discussion now of the government paying for the medical treatment necessary to correct these minor defects where the individuals cannot afford to do it themselves.

There have been some cases of failure to complete and return questoinnaires, report changes of address and failure to report for induction on the specified day. Cases of draft evasion are turned over to the United States District Attorney and to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for prosecution.

All men have a right to appeal to the local draft board which is composed of prominent men from Nevada City, Grass Valley and Truckee. There have been three appeal cases and all have been sustained.

In the discussion that followed Mr. Morrison's interesting talk, Mrs. Isabel Heffelfinger said that in connection with the rigid health examination given by the local doctors and the examination given at the induction centers, the National Tuberculosis Association gives free X-ray examination to all men. This is a service rendered by the association that not many people realize is being done by the purchase of Christmas Seals.

Miriam Skeahan, Florence Kendrick, Grace Kimsey and Nellie Schiffner were chairmen for the evening. Mrs. Kendrick accompanied by Genevieve Elliott at the piano sang "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" and "From Taps Till Revelle." There was also community singing of "Goodbye Dear" and "I've Been Drafted."

Helen Grant, health chairman, announced that plans are going forward for the people of Nevada City and Grass Valley to hear Dr. Helen Mackler, Field Education Worker for the Bureau of Venerial Disease for the State of California March 18, 1942. Dr. Mackler is a well known authority on Venerial Diseases.

Genevieve Elliott is the chairman for the December meetings with Mary Steger and Sue Naeve assisting. Plans for the Christmas party will be announced by Mrs. Elliott soon.

COMMITTEES OUTLINING PLANS FOR BUILDING

Joint committees of Banner Mountain Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce met here last night to outline plans for securing a Veterans Memorial Building for this city.

The Banner Mountain Post, headed by Howard C. Bennetts, is enthustically interested in a Veterans Building for Nevada City.

Every civic worker and organization in this city will be contacted and asked to become interested in the drive for the memorial building here.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce committee working on plans for the building are H. S. Foreman, Norman Dewsnup, Lambert Thomas and George Gildersleeve.

Chamber Compiles Data For Use Of Federal Security Agency

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Tahoe National Forest Service, is compiling extensive data for the use of George R. Vestal, field recreation representative of the Federal Security Agency, in providing recreation for United States armed forces on their time off.

The information which will be dispatched to Vestal will include a large map of the Tahoe National Forest, listing all good hunting and fishing spots, as well as all camp grounds, ski runs and popular recreational spots.

The legislative economy bloc is to be congratulated for its resolve to reduce state taxes, especially when all taxpayers are now faced with excessive increases in federal taxes.

Teacher was trying to demonstrate to the class the effects of whisky on the stomach. She put a live worm in a glass of water, which of course had no effect on it. She put another in a glass of whisky, and it expired immediately.

"Now Willie," she said, "what is the moral of this demonstration?"

"All I can figure out, teacher," he said, "is that everyone should drink whisky to kill their worms."

"Say, how can I get rid of fleas?"

"That's easy. Take a bath in sand and rub down with alcohol. The bugs get drunk and kill each other throwing rocks."

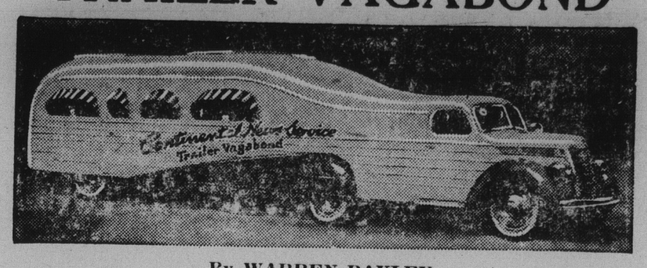
TRAILER VAGABOND



By WARREN BAYLEY

This feature appears through the courtesy of O. K. Tire Weld Co. G. R. (Red) Jarrard, Hills Flat, Grass Valley, California.

Lava Beds National Monument, California.

The bloody Modoc War of 1873 was fought here in the arid, volcanic hills along the Oregon-California line. Out numbered twenty to one, a handfu of Modoc Indians waged a losing, four-month battle for freedom against 1,000 federal soldiers.

The trouble began when the Modoc tribe signed its land over to our government in exchange for a reservation. But the reservation they got also their traditional enemies—the fierce Klamath Indians .Robbed and abused by their red-skinned neighbors, the Modocs pleaded in vain for the promised private reservation. In final desperation they fled south to their ancient hunting grounds and found peace and work among friendly settlers there. When federal troops were called out to bring them back 53 braves and 7 squaws retreated farther into the rocky, barren, lava strewn area that is today a preserve of volcanic and archeological relics.

These Lava Beds are a National Monument to a restless geologic period dating from 35,000,000 B. C. up until but 500 years ago. Lava tubes and ice filled caves, many marked with pitographs of long lost tribes, lie beneath the black lava flows and cinder cones scattered over this 46,000 acre area.

An outstanding feature here is the historic Stronghold, a huge, semi-circular natural trench that Chief "Captain Pack" Keintpoos and his braves converted into an almost impregnable fort. Its jagged, fifteen-foot ramparts command every approach up the gentle rise to its frowning battlements.

We covered in five minutes the trail the U. S. Army fought upon for days. All along the way are the remaining mounds and low rock walls the soldiers erected for protection as they closed in for the kill. The point at which the troops dug in before launching their final rush is marked by a higher stone breastwork, obviously constructed during the night by men unfamiliar with surrounding terrain.

Dawn of April 17th, 1783, saw the troops make their last charge. It met no resistance. Reduced to seventeen in number, their water supply cut off, the Indians had slipped away in the night, leaving a lone, toothless squaw, too old for further travel, to greet the victorious soldiers.

The hot pursuit that followed rounded up the remaining Modocs. Captain ack was held on a charge of murdering General Canby, commander of the federal force. Captain Jack claimed that his own father had been murdered by whites while under a flag of truce and asked that the white assassins be tried also, either by Indian or government court. His plea was sternly rejected and the Chief went bravey to his death at the end of a rope.

General Canby's grave is here where he fell, marked by a simple, wooden cross, his name and the brief details of his passing burned into the monument by his men. There should also be a monument here in honor of Captain Jack, a victim of an era of violence and misunderstanding, a Chief who was fighting merely for the rights of himself and his people.

NEW SOLDIERS GAIN 6 1-2 POUNDS AVERAGE WEIGHT

FORT MASON, (San Francisco), Nov. 27—Inquiry of soldiers reveals that the women of America are vitally interested in the welfare of their men who are now in Uncle Sam's army or may be in it soon. Apparently some of the questions most frequently asked of trainees and the soldiers by mothers, wives and sweethearts are:

"Do you have a good bed to sleep on in camp."

"Do they give you enough cover?"

"Do you get enough to eat?"

"Is it the right kind of food?"

According to all information that could be obtained from recipients of personal letters from men in the service, the soldiers are doing very well, thank you, and most of them apparently have gained weight and are in fine physical shape.

Now comes a scientific report carefully presedved in the office files of F. J. Riley, Quartermaster Supply Officer for the San Francisco General Depot at Fort Mason, which transfers the general impression of soldier well-being into the realm of fact. This quartermaster agency procures most of the food for the Ninth Corps Area, the Philippines and Hawaii, as well as ten items of food stuffs for the entire army of the United States.

A weight survey recently completed at Fort Ord, Calif, by Major Frederic B. Westervelt, division surgeon, during which 811 men were checked for weight, reveals that 80 per cent of them gained a total of 5,252 pounds of 2.62 tons since induction. Computation show that the men have each gained an average of neary 6 1-2 pounds—6.46 pounds to be exact—since they entered service. Equally important, the survey reveals that overweight soldiers have been trimmed down considerably, some as much as 30 or 40 pounds, indicating that mothers of lads who were "extra stout" when they entered service will have to take a second look before recognizing their physically fit sons when they come home.

The health of the soldier is a major consideration of the Quartermaster Corps, which not only sees that he gets a sufficient quantity of food of the best quality, but also that the food procured provides a health-giving vitamin loaded, balanced ration. Meat, milk, fish, butter, eggs, cheese, poultry, fresh fruits and vegetables and canned orchard products stand high on the list. In fact, almost everything that is eaten in a well managed home has its place on the army menu. Preparation of meals necessarily lacks the "personal touch" of home but the food is of the finest quality, prepared by trained and experienced army chefs.

As for sleeping comfort, it may be surprising to many civilians to know that the soldier like the civilian spends approximately a third of his life in bed. It is very important that he has a good night's rest. At most camps in the Ninth Corps area he is issued by the Quartermaster Corps a steel bed, mattress, pillow, two mattress covers, two pillow cases, four wool blankets and four cotton sheets.

PUPILS HONOR TEACHER

was attended by former students of Mrs. Austin's and their near relatives. Present was the first clerk of the board of the school. Luther Pittman, aged 90 years and also the last clerk of the board Mrs. A. Anderson.

The school was discontinued this past year. The possibility of the school premises being included in the proposed army cantonment, no doubt suggested the reunion which so ably planned and managed by Mr. and Mrs. Russi. of Marysville. Mrs. Russi is a former pupil of Mrs. Austin's.

After a bountiful luncheon served at one o'clock interesting addresses were made by various guests. The talk by Miss Tosca Woehler of San Jose was greatly applauded. She paid many compliments to the district and to people from there. Miss Woehler is a graduate of the Spenceville school and later of an eastern university and is now teaching in the high school in San Jose.

Mart O'Rourick of San Jose, once interested in mines near the Spenceville district spoke especially of the good citizens whom he had met in business in this section.

Mrs. Austin gave an historical sketch of the Spenceville mine and stated that its downfall was due to the sulphur smoke from the mine destroying vegetation in all surrounding areas.

All day the people who came from near and far for the reunion visited and had a most happy time reminiscing. The day was all too short and the school too small so it was decided to hold the next meeting in the spring on a picnic ground with ample room for all.

Mrs. Austin was presented with many gifts from those present and a general gift from the group. Many pictures were taken and prints will be sent to those who registered with their address. Among those present, most of whom were former pupils of Mrs. Austin were:

GEMS OF THOUGHT

CULTIVATING HAPPINESS

Happiness can be built only on virtue, and must of necessity have truth for its foundation.—Coleridge.

Human felicity is produced not so much by great pieces of good fortune that seldom happen, as by little advantages that occur every day.—Benjamin Franklin.

In every part and corner of our life, to lose oneself is to be gainer; to forget oneself is to be happy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Self ignorance, self will, self righteousness, lust, covetousness, revenge, envy, are foes to grace, peace, and progress; they must be met manfully and overcome, or they will uproot all happiness.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Happiness is not a reward—it is a consequence—Ingersoll.

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. —New Testament: Galations 5: 22, 23.
